Biography

Lee Bodie started his career as a bag boy in an Okanagan Grocery store at the tender age of 17 years and soon learned by the power of observation, that in order to get ahead in life, one had to work hard and work exceed the expectations of the employer. He also learned early on in his career that adding humour to his job allowed him to excel even faster. Lee found that a person could say just about anything they wanted and get away with it, as long as they said it with a smile. The doors opened faster and wider as a result and he climbed the corporate ladder of in the grocery business—an assistant manager by age 19, a grocery manager by age 29, a general manager by age 33 and a store owner by age 37.

Lee's formal education consists of the school of life and a keen sense of observation of what works and what doesn't work. His management style is simple. Treat others the way he would like to be treated. Be fair, be logical, be flexible but be firm. Now in his 45th year in the grocery business, he built one store and renovated seven others, all with very successful rates of return.

He brings only common sense and a sense of humour to the table as a board member as well as a lengthy history of what has worked for him and more importantly, what has not worked. Lee's love of improving himself translates to a desire to improve his community and his fellow Yukoners.

Lee's hobbies are vintage automobiles, the love of gardening and catering to his Cairn Terrier.
